A morning view (Above) looking out over Chalong Bay towards Lon Island. A peaceful part of Phuket without noisy traffic. In the afternoon when the tide has receded, it takes on a totally different look when locals take advantage of the exposed rocks to look for shellfish (Below) Still one of the finest beaches on the island, Kata Beach has become very popular over the years and has a thriving local community. While some beaches have become built out, Kata has remained quite tranquil and picturesque.
