

Top: Ming (green dress) and friends turned up to her restaurant in the lobby of the Andaman Sea Guesthouse to help celebrate her recent birthday.

Left: Kan attended the opening of the Mouse Hole on Nanai Road and showed how to look cool on a hot night, or was that how to look hot on a cool night.

Below: Oh yes, couldn't let this opportunity go by, Hendry pointing out to Rab some information he had missed from the last issue of the Andaman Post at the opening of the Mouse Hole.

Right: All but, Steve feeling a little more relaxed at the opening of the extensions of the Aussie Bar in Bangla Road in Patong. Having wandered down the road at some ridiculous times of the morning showed us how much work was put in to get them up and running.

When you enter Rock City on the beach road you are met by a full size scale model of "King Kong" and he's big. The stage is 10 meters wide and equipped with a full lighting system. The sound system is imported from USA and is the latest state of the art. The first night opening on November 5th exposed some bugs in the system, such as about half the power than was needed was actually available to them and some of the staff were still coming to grips with working at a venue where the music was pumping. But we can forgive them for that as all the little problems are being addressed and hopefully should be sorted out by their official opening on December 1st.

For the opening month they have contracted the "AC/DC" tribute band that will be on stage from 11:30 pm four
