We couldn't understand why he just didn't let her go and enjoy the rest of his trip. But he wasn't telling us all that was going on behind the scenes so had to deal with it his own way.

He came up with a scheme and played it out one afternoon a few days before it was time to leave. He lost his credit card.

The shock and horror on her face was something to see and bought a smile to all his friends' faces. Effectively he was now at the mercy of his friends and they would supply enough money for the essentials but no more.

Round 2 to him...

She kept trying though and even arranged a taxi to the airport thus canceling the one that had already been arranged for him.

This was her last chance and at the airport stated to him that he had promised to send the money to her. No such promise had been made, in fact no suggestion of a promise had been made.

He finally boarded the plane and was gone. We have not seen the predator since, nor do we want to as we feel she did enough damage and ruined this guy's holiday.

A phone call a few days later revealed the problems he was having extricating himself from the situation. Apparently, it involved a threatened drug setup which explains the measures he had to resort to to be rid of her.

It also makes you wonder how everyone is going out there in that dating jungle.

Having seen what happened to this lad, I think I'll just go and hide again for a little while. But not for too long though
