One night the usual scenario was playing itself out, they would arrive back at the hotel, he would go to the bar and she would head up to the room. Only this night was a little different. He only stayed for one drink and decided to head up to the room himself. When he arrived, he found that she wasn't there. He waited and waited and eventually she turned up with a look of surprise on her face. She hadn't expected to find him back so early. It turned out that every night while he was down at the bar, she was carrying on a little bit of private business upstairs with a few of the other guests. A very entrepreneurial young lass.
