

WEDDINGS, PARTIES, ANYTHING

Anticlockwise from Above: There was a full turnout for the 1st anniversary of Ming's Restaurant in Patong; Ming (3rd from right) and staff at the anniversary; Alan celebrated his birthday at Friends Bar in Soi Dongstan; Willy (3rd from left) celebrated his birthday at the same place a week or so later; The Mellow Bar in Kata held their second once-a-month party recently to try and get people out during the low season. Live local bands played the night away.

Continued from Page 24

Thailand is to start enforcing restrictions on liquids, aerosols and gels (LAG) in hand-carried luggage on all commercial flights departing from airports nationwide soon.

The restrictions have been in place for several months for flights leaving Thailand for the US, the UK and Australia, in line with the requirements imposed by those countries. They are now being expanded to all domestic and international flights. They will also apply to passengers making transit and transfer connections in Thai airports.

Passengers may continue to buy LAG items but the purchases will be placed in sealed tamper-evident bags by the shops, with the receipt clearly visible

Under present guidelines, LAG items must be in containers with a maximum content of 100 ml each. LAG in containers larger than 100 are prohibited, even if the container was partially filled.

Larger containers must be placed in a transparent re-sealable plastic bag with a maximum capacity not exceeding one litre. Only one such bag will be permitted per passenger, and it must be presented separately for examination at the security screening point.

Continued Page 27

Announcement from Apple

Apple Computer has announced that it has developed a computer chip that can store and play music in women's breast implants. The iBreast will cost $499 or $599.

This is considered to be a major breakthrough because women are always complaining about men staring at their breasts and not listening to them.